creativity is crucial to business success but too often even the most innovative organization quickly becomes a giant hairball a tangled impenetrable mass of rules traditions and systems all based on what worked in the past that exercises an inexorable pull into mediocrity gordon mckenzie worked at hallmark cards for thirty years many of which he spent inspiring his colleagues to slip the bonds of corporate normalcy and rise to orbit to a mode of dreaming daring and doing above and beyond the rubber stamp confines of the administrative mind set in his deeply funny book exuberantly illustrated in full color he shares the story of his own professional evolution together with lessons on awakening and fostering creative genius originally self published and already a business cult classic this personally empowering and entertaining look at the intersection between human creativity and the bottom line is now widely available to bookstores it will be a must read for any manager looking for new ways to invigorate employees and any professional who wants to achieve his or her best most self expressive most creative and fulfilling work the leadership paradox the harder you try to control a group the less control you will have the calendar paradox the busier you are the less you will accomplish the relationship paradox the people who like you most will be the ones you try least to please the anxiety paradox the less you worry about the church the better it will do the stewardship paradox the more you preach about money the less you will receive the preaching paradox the more you preach the less you will have to say the negotiation paradox the most serious issues cannot be handled seriously the learning paradox you will only learn more of what you already know the power paradox the weakest people in the church tend to wield the most power the issues paradox the issues you most want to push are beyond pushing the decision paradox people seldom have to choose between right and wrong the influence paradox the most powerful people in your life will not be powerful people the controversy paradox the issue you are arguing about is not the issue at all the confrontation paradox direct confrontation seldom confronts the problem the intimacy paradox distance often helps people more than closeness the ministry paradox the more you try to help people the more helpless people become the helper's paradox the best way to help others is to take care of yourself the organization paradox the more organized the church becomes the less it accomplishes the problems paradox problems are not really problems at all the time paradox the less important the issue the more time you will spend on it the attitude paradox only pastors who are having fun can seriously proclaim the gospel people yearn for leaders who are authentic who show their own face and not a game face who find and use their voice in appropriate ways and act with a tangible sense of integrity those who engage in the process of leadership each of us at some point want to do so as our true self but staying true to one's self is not easy we are continually moving in and out of authenticity we are present one moment and absent the next we often say yes when we want to say no we act from our core values some of the time but give them a wink when the heat is on there is no formula for being integral and authentic becoming and being ourselves requires confidence and courage drawing on the author's 40 years in leadership training this book discusses the things we can do along the way recognizing our strengths and limitations speaking truth to power trusting our companions as we strive to fulfill our leadership potential instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy
