European colonial expansion led to Dutch notions of civilised society or the Dutch community's flexible and relatively charitable attitudes toward others being scattered as in the Greek word diaspeirein to the four corners of the earth in some cases the exportation of Dutch cultural values to places overseas like North America endowed Dutchness with subtle new meanings but in colonial Indonesia Dutch political customs and traditions were transformed in the process of migrating to exotic locales in this book Frances Gouda examines the ways in which the Netherlands portrayed its unique colonial style to the outside world why were citizens of a small and politically insignificant European nation able to represent as natural and normal their dominance over ancient civilizations on islands such as Java and Bali how did Dutch colonial residents explain the cultural differences between themselves and the supposedly primitive peoples of the Indonesian archipelago in trying to understand the gendering practices of colonial governance in the Netherlands East Indies Gouda also explores the interactions of Dutch and Indonesian women with European men Frances Gouda earned a Ph.D. in history from the University of Washington in Seattle in 1980 she is currently professor of history and gender studies in the political science department of the University of Amsterdam
